In this letter I am
Referring to Docket NO 92-96,
Telephone Consumer Protection
Act of 1991 -

I must tell you how important "Cold Calling" is to my Business. I am a Realtor in Palm Springs, & in today's market you have to prospect & cold call to get the business & keep alive!

I cold call & have a telemarketing
call residence every day &
that has been my income & livelihood.

I am only so a service - that is

This type of legislation leans towards autocratic instead of democratic principles, and any person who is holding an office in this great nation who would support such a ludicrous proposal (Docket No. 92-90) has obviously forgotten the fundamental principles that helped them obtain their position of power and distinction.

My fellow entrepreneurs and I are extremely concerned. We hope that you reconsider your position and listen to the pleas of the people. We only ask to be able to conduct our businesses in the way our forefathers set forth for us.

Sincerely,

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

I am extremely disturbed to hear that there is a piece of legislation being considered for approval, which would prohibit person to person solicitation to residential homes, referred to as Docket No. 92-90, Telephone Consumer Protection Act of 1991.

This type of legislation suggests an underlying theme of socialism that is very threatening to me and many others in business. I believe that 90% of the businesses in America were started by telephone solicitation initially and that this form of solicitation is one of the highest and best examples of free enterprise in this Country. This socialistic theme that the government should take care of the people and dictate policy in the private sector has proven over and over again to cause nothing but trouble in this great Country's history.

America was made great by entrepreneurial people who were willing to prospect for new business and were astute enough to ascertain what types of prospecting yield the most results. I am a real estate broker in the state of Colorado and I have utilized many prospecting methods to achieve my objectives and none of them are as effective as person to person telephone solicitation. I started my business when I was 21 and now at 29 I am currently in the top ten for Colorado for RE/MAX International and I built my business with "cold calling," hard work and determination. I believe my success has been directly attributable in part to person to person telephone contact.

To Whom It May Concern:

I feel strongly that it is extremely important to my business to be able to continue to make person-to-person solicitations into residential homes.

I also feel it is important to my sellers that this marketing tool not be taken away.

I would hate to see the proposed regulation - Docket No. 92-90, Telephone Consumer Protection Act of 1991 - be put into effect.

Sincerely,

Darcy Bauer

To Whom It May Concern:

The proposed limiting of our ability to call individual citizens of this country causes me great concern for several reasons. First, I think the freedom to speak to whom we want, when we want, by any means available is guaranteed in the Constitution of the United States. Second, our business depends largely on the marketing efforts of individual real estate agents. Limiting their ability to call prospective clients for business will decrease their income and drive many of them out of the business. Thirdly, our country has thrived on the entrepreneurial spirit that lives within each businessman. Many more businesses rely on telephone solicitation to procure business.

In summary, I believe limiting telephone solicitations is an infringement on the rights of everyone who needs to talk to someone else to make a living.

Sincerely,

Christopher D. Smith

Dear Sir or Madam;

I am writing in reference to the Docket NO. 92-90, Telephone Consumer Protection Act of 1991. As a Real Estate professional, it is crucial to my business to be allowed to "cold call". Person to person solicitations to residential customers is the way I service a number of clients in helping to get thier homes sold. Please do not pass this legislation.

Thank you very much.

Sincerely,
